15:00 Mon 24 Feb 2020

Snow and flooding leading to some travel disruption.

What to expect

- Power cuts may occur and other services, such as mobile phone coverage, may be affected
- Spray and flooding could lead to difficult driving conditions and some road closures
- Some rural communities could become cut off

Further details

A band of rain reaching southern parts of northern England during Sunday night quickly turns to snow before spreading northeastwards across the rest of the warning area. Across northern England, snow will then turn to rain from the south and west through the course of the morning before slowly turning to rain at lower levels over the part of the warning area in Scotland.

The bulk of accumulations will be above 200 metres where 2-5 cm is likely in many areas whilst above 300 to 400 metres 5 to 10 cm is expected.

Low likelihood of medium impacts

Yellow warning
Rain & Snow

Between
02:00 Mon 24 Feb 2020 and
15:00 Mon 24 Feb 2020

At lower levels accumulations will be smaller, patchier and shorter-lived and it may be that little, if any, snow falls in some eastern coastal areas.

A brief spell of freezing rain is possible as snow begins to turn to rain, leading to icy stretches. Meanwhile, given saturated ground and recent flooding, the combination of snow melt and rain may also bring about some disruption, mainly over parts of northern England.
